Steven was a great prof! It was clear how much he cared about his job and the students. Only piece of feedback is please grade our stuff and give us feedback quicker, or just assign less work if that's not feasible! We had to wait so long for feedback sometimes and we sometimes wouldn't even have it by the next assignment so we couldn't use it to inform our new work.

Steven's commitment to students' success is truly commendable. Despite not having a teaching assistant for the course, he consistently checked in to ensure we were keeping up with the course material. He responds to emails promptly and is always available to address any concerns I have.

This is probably one of the best courses I have ever taken, and Steven's a great instructor.

I adore Dr. Moore. He is an enthusiastic, engaging, and understanding teacher. He takes time out of his life to aid students in class-related difficulties and outside-of-class inquiries such as letters of recommendation or resume reviews. Dr. Moore is an incredible example of the idea professor.

This is my top course this semester. Although the weekly workload, which includes the reading guide and a group project, is heavier compared to other courses, Steven is extremely supportive, and I really enjoy his teaching.

While this course was a lot of work, I feel that most of the work was useful and helped me learn. The exception would be the big ideas project. The reasoning that I understood for this project was to provide a synthesized document with course concepts that would be a useful reference in the future. However, since there are six people in my group, everyone has different ideas about what kind of document would be useful to them, which means that the resulting document is less useful than it could be for all of us. I think the big ideas project would be much more useful as an individual project with slightly smaller scope. This would also lessen the stress of having to coordinate two separate group projects throughout the entire semester (it really is so hard to consistently meet with a group especially towards the end of the semester. In terms of teaching, Steven is truly a wonderful teacher and as a student, i really feel like he cares about my learning and experience in the classroom. I was genuinely surprised that he considered our feedback and made adjustments to the course almost immediately (this has never happened before for me and it was so nice!!).

You are an extremely engaging instructor, and I am eager to continue learning from you!

Yay Steven

Love the instructor's positive attitude and attention given to all students.

The best class I've taken so far at CMU, Steven is also one of my fav instructors.

Steven is a great instructor. He is extremely invested in his students, and genuinely seems to love teaching. He was very open to student feedback throughout the course, and when possible would make adjustments based on it. I would strongly recommend taking any class he's teaching.

mentors were little tricky to work with. i also hope the canvas steps for both projects were more clear. overall i love steven! he's so fun and always care!

One of the best instructors ever!!

Great class!

someone told me they were a bit disappointed you didn't let students introduce their costumes on the Halloween class XD
